

Joseph Graziano

SJRCS Graduate 2006

After achieving the highest grade-point average in his class of 323 students at Central Catholic High School, Joe was named valedictorian in 2010. He attained outstanding SAT scores including a perfect 800 in critical reading. A voracious reader with a passionate love of learning, Joe still found time in high school to participate in the chorus, Theater Guild, and Campus Ministry Team. He also plays the piano and saxophone and loves hiking, camping, and other outdoor activities. He is currently a sophomore double-majoring in philosophy and theology at Providence College in Providence, RI which awarded him a full-tuition scholarship.

Regarding his alma mater St. Joseph Regional Catholic School, Joe asserts, “St. Joe’s formed the firm foundation on which I built all that I have learned since. All education must build off of what came before. At St. Joe’s, I received the cornerstone for my further education. Beyond mere education, however, at St. Joe’s, I learned the paramount lessons of friendship, including how to make friends, how to keep friends, and how leave friends but never lose them.

For these lessons, and above all for bringing God into the lives of children, I am ever in debt to St. Joe’s, a school that can’t compare.”
